Congress Opens Election-Year Session

Cabinet To Get Preview Of Ike Report Today

President Flies Back To Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ending a 10-day vacation in Georgia, President Eisenhower flew back Tuesday to a city abuzz with preparations for the reopening of Congress Wednesday and for the big political year ahead.

The President himself will touch off the real work of the session when he delivers his State of the Union message to a joint Senate-House meeting on Thursday. Eisenhower put the final touches on the message during his stay in Augusta.

He will meet Wednesday with his Cabinet to go over the message, which outlines broadly what the administration hopes the Democratic-controlled Congress will do this year.

Budget Message Jan. 18

Eisenhower's detailed requests to Congress will come later, starting with the annual budget message Jan. 18. This is expected to call for record peacetime spending of $1 billion dollars.

Then will come Eisenhower's annual report on the economic outlook Jan. 20, with other special requests to follow as he sees fit.

Before Congress meets for its brief opening-day rituals, Eisenhower will attend a special service at his church, National Presbyterian. This is an annual event on the day Congress convenes.

The President took a nap before leaving Augusta in the presidential plane Columbine, delaying the scheduled takeoff an hour.

Ike Visits Dirksen Party

The smiling President and Mrs. Eisenhower were met on their way by two old friends, Sen. Alfred M. Gruenther, president of the American Red Cross, and Col. Tom Belshie, another retired officer.

First on his back-home schedule was a visit Tuesday night to a belated birthday party at a downtown hotel for Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader.

Dirksen, who described it as "a bipartisan or nonpartisan affair put on by my friends annually," was 64 Monday.

Five Insane Felons Escape

RALEIGH, N. C. (UPI) — Four male patients escaped from a maximum security unit for the criminally insane at a state mental hospital Tuesday, freed a girl friend and fled in a stolen car.

The four men took master keys from a guard room and a laundry room and crawled through an unbarred window in the basement. Then they overpowered two women attendants at the women's building and released Farry Lee Cook, 23, who joined them in the flight.

Miss Cook was committed as criminally insane after being indicted for blasting her father to death with a shotgun last May at Aberdeen, N. C. The four men all had prison sentences prior to being committed.

They were Clarence Penley, 22, of Lenoir, N. C., serving life for murder; James R. Mears, 32, of Augusta, Ga., sentenced to 10-15 years for kidnapping; Dexter Ede, 22, of Hickory, N. C., serving 7-10 years for robbery and escape; and Russell Taylor, 26, Fayetteville, N. C., serving 7-10 years for robbery.

Construction Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—Construction increased 11 per cent in 1959 to a record total of $54,300,000,000, the government reported Tuesday.

Hot Political Skirmishing Lies Ahead

Budget, Foreign Aid, Civil Rights Among Top Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress toed the mark Tuesday, set to take off into an election-year session of politicking, legislating and investigating.

The second session of the 86th Congress will get under way officially at noon Wednesday with preliminary ceremonies in the Senate and House.

The business of the year will start on Thursday when President Eisenhower goes before a joint session and delivers his annual State of the Union message. At that time, Eisenhower will outline what he would like the Democratic-controlled Congress to do in the last year of his two terms.

No Organizing Problems

Eisenhower will send up his annual budget message on Jan. 18 and his economic report two days after that.

Since there are no organizing problems to be handled, the flow of legislation to the Senate and House likely will begin shortly after these three messages are out of the way.

Facing both houses early in the year is a battle over civil rights proposals — a battle that could split the Democratic party and influence significantly the Democrats' chances of putting their man in the White House.

Politicking, never absent on Capitol Hill, will be ever sharper this year as the legislators move through the issues that confront them perennially, and probably some new ones.

Battles Lie Ahead

The annual battle of the budget, foreign aid, defense policy, aid to education, help for economically depressed regions—all these and more lie ahead of Congress before its hoped-for adjournment ahead of the national nominating conventions next July.

When the new members are seated, the Democrats will outnumber the Republicans in the House 281-153, with three vacancies, and in the Senate 65-35.

All 437 House seats and 33 of the Senate's 100 will be on the block in November. Because of their wide edge, it is virtually impossible for the Democrats to lose control of the Senate next fall.

Laying the groundwork for the session, Senate Republicans have arranged a conference Wednesday afternoon.

Payola Probers Paying Paola

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House subcommittee that made payola a household word has hired a staff secretary named Paola, and pronounced payola.

Elizabeth G. Paola of nearby Bethesda, Md., worked for the subcommittee on a temporary basis during the recent holiday season. She will go on full-time duty beginning next week, subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said.

The trial returns to its Los Angeles courtroom Wednesday.

Adenauer Is 84

BONN, Germany (UPI)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer celebrated his 84th birthday Tuesday by receiving a report that West Germany's fledgling armed forces had passed the quarter-million man mark.

The report from Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss highlighted a busy day of birthday activities for the chancellor, Europe's oldest active statesman.

West Germany Jails 18 For Anti-Semitism

BONN, Germany (AP) — West German courts Tuesday jailed 18 men accused of contributing to the wave of anti-Semitic acts that has spread across western Europe and to nations overseas.

The Bonn government sought to stamp out the plague of anonymously scrawled swastikas and anti-Jewish slogans that it fears is damaging its prestige abroad.

In West Berlin, Rolf Wolny, a 23-year-old unemployed clerk, became the first person convicted in the 10-day-old series of incidents. He was sentenced to 10 months in jail for painting anti-Jewish slogans on doors and a shop window.

Sixteen West Berliners were remanded to jail pending trial following a preliminary court hearing. The group is accused of staging a neo-Nazi torchlight parade Saturday night.

Sen. Joachim Lipshitz, in charge of West Berlin's police, said steps were being taken to ban two radical right-wing youth groups—the National Youth of Germany and the League of Nationalist Students.

In Bonn, Werner Barke, a 60-year-old salesman, was sentenced to three months in jail for scattering Nazi leaflets.

Cologne authorities said the two men arrested after the Christmas Eve desecration of a synagogue would be tried soon. Police said the two have confessed to the act that touched off the current wave of Jew-baiting.

Meanwhile, the local chairman of the rightist German Reich party in Cologne was released by police for lack of evidence connecting him with the defacement of the synagogue.

Germany's wartime ally, Italy, was also beset with fresh incidents directed against its relatively few Jewish citizens who even in Fascist days experienced little persecution.

In Turin, police found swastikas painted on a wall against which 60 hostages were shot by the Nazis in World War II. "Death to Jews" was also scribbled on a park bench.

Actress In London Revue Vanishes

LONDON (AP) — Theatrical agents searched Tuesday for Myra de Groot, lovely 23-year-old actress in a London revue who has been missing since Monday night.

A spokesman for the producers of the revue, "Pieces of Eight," said: "We have absolutely no idea where she is."

The vivacious dark-haired comedienne, who directed shows for the U.S. 7th Army in Germany last year, called the theater Monday night before the performance to say she would be unable to appear.

"We can't think of any explanation," the spokesman said. "We assumed she was ill until we heard she had packed her bags and ordered a taxi for London airport — there are rumors that she has gone back to Germany."

15 Killed As Jammed Italian Train Wrecks

124 Injured In Smashup On Curve

By LUCIANO FERRARI

MONZA, Italy (AP)—A packed commuter train thundered across the roof of a two-story factory building. Then it fell and overturned.

Another bounced into the air and fell back down on an upended rail. The rail stabbed through three passengers, killing them, and pierced the roof. One of the passengers killed by the rail was a Roman Catholic priest.

Another coach slithered crosswise on the bridge and remained balanced precariously at an angle.

The Transport Ministry, operator of Italy's national railways, said that speed on the curve was limited to six miles an hour and the train was making 45 miles an hour. It blamed the accident on excessive speed and heavy fog, so dense passengers could not see buildings along the tracks.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) hailed as a significant gain the announcement Tuesday that Ohio's Gov. Michael V. DiSalle supports his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"This is a significant and heartening step toward our goal," Kennedy said of DiSalle's announcement that he will run as a favorite son in Ohio's May 3 primary, seeking to sew up the 64-vote delegation for Kennedy.

This all but eliminated the prospect of a battle for delegates in the state, which will have the fifth largest delegation to the convention opening in Los Angeles July 11.

"Sen. Kennedy would make the best nominee for the Democratic party and would best serve the nation as its president," DiSalle said in Columbus. "Announcing at this time will eliminate any speculation as to what my candidacy for favorite son implies. Those delegates who run pledged to me will know in advance that they are, in effect, supporting the candidacy of Sen. Kennedy."

In announcing his candidacy formally last Saturday, Kennedy had challenged other potential aspirants to contest with him in the primaries. One who did not accept the challenge was Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.).

"I don't think I'm a candidate at all," Symington told a news conference. "A candidate is one who announces."

Still, he told a news conference he would do nothing to keep his name out of the Oregon presidential preference primary May 20.

Symington called the news conference on the eve of a congressional session bound to be shot through with presidential campaign politics.

Signing Held In Good Will Atmosphere

McDonald Expects No Trouble Lining Up Smaller Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Steelworkers Union and the nation's big steel producers Tuesday sealed their new pact ensuring peace in the industry at least for 2½ years.

The signing of agreements covering 11 major steel firms came in an atmosphere of good will, a far cry from the bitterness that marked most of the eight-month wage dispute.

Final touches were put on the pact after two top union bodies—the Executive Board and its 171-member Wage Policy Committee—had unanimously endorsed the settlement terms.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, who along with Vice President Richard M. Nixon helped fashion the settlement, was present at the signing. He warmly congratulated both sides.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, and David J. McDonald, union president, shook hands and buried the hatchet, and pledged to work for maximum and most efficient steel production.

"You Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet!" "I want to tell the world," McDonald said, "if you think the American steel industry has been great, you ain't seen nothin' yet. Watch us do a job."

Cooper, executive vice president of U.S. Steel Corp., said: "It's been a long struggle. It's over. We look forward to maximum cooperation to do the job we have ahead."

Several hundred union leaders cheered these comments and one and all trooped into a mass cocktail party hosted by the union.

The agreement, most of whose terms had leaked out beforehand, calls for a 30-month contract to July 1, 1962. It provides about 40 cents an hour in wage-benefit increases. The workers formerly averaged $3.11 hourly earnings.

Substantial insurance, pension and other benefits became effective immediately. There is no immediate wage boost. But an increase ranging from 7 to 13 cents an hour becomes due on Dec. 1, 1960 and a similar pay raise on Oct. 1, 1961.

Mental Patient Turned Robber Gets 10 Years

BALTIMORE (AP) — An escaped mental patient who allegedly robbed Washington and Baltimore banks got 10 years Tuesday for a $4,000 stickup here last Oct. 2.

Although the defense contended 40-year-old Charles P. Watts was mentally irresponsible at the time of the crime, Judge Anselm So-

Missing Plane Hunt Spurred

SALISBURY (AP) — The chilly water of Tangier Sound was the focal point Tuesday of a search for a missing plane piloted by a Salisbury man.

The search was concentrated on an area of water about 50 feet deep west of Deal Island and just south of Kedges Strait.

An oil slick was spotted earlier in the vicinity as State Police and others continued the hunt for the plane in which J. Harold Sharpe, a feed and poultry company executive, disappeared last Tuesday en route from Burlington, N. C. to his Salisbury home.

Two planes and a helicopter were called out to assist in the effort to locate the craft which Sharpe rented from L. L. Blackwell of Ocean City to fly south to visit his parents over the holiday.

Airliner Collides With Delivery Van

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — More than 30 passengers narrowly escaped when a Vienna-bound Swissair plane and a delivery van collided as the aircraft was taking off at Zurich Airport Tuesday.

The van was crossing the runway at the time of the crash.

Two persons in the van were killed on the spot when the undercarriage of the heavy Viscount airliner crashed into it. The Swiss pilot, who saw the vehicle at the last moment, pulled up in time to prevent crashing back on to the concrete runway.

He managed to land, although the undercarriage was slightly damaged. No one in the plane was injured.

Herbert O'Connor Jr. Seeks Congress Seat

BALTIMORE (AP) — Herbert R. O'Connor Jr., 37-year-old son of the former governor and U. S. senator, announced Tuesday he will run for Democratic nomination to Congress in Maryland's Seventh Congressional District.

He became the second major candidate to challenge the renomination bid of Rep. Samuel N. Friedel, who has represented the all-Baltimore district ever since its creation eight years ago.

Maurice Cardin, serving his third term in the House of Delegates, announced earlier.

Robbins said from 40 to 45 patients in the 78-bed hospital were needed to break even. But since the dispute between the two factions broke into the open 27 days ago, the hospital has been operating at a loss of $500 a day.

"In all probability we cannot continue operating more than one week," Robbins said.

He said the number of patients now was down to 20.

Meanwhile, a meeting scheduled Tuesday night among interested agencies was called off. It was to have included the Dorchester Board of County Commissioners, Cambridge City Council and the planning committee of the Cambridge-Maryland Hospital.

Russell Tyler, chairman of the planning committee, said some legal matters had to be straightened out before the session is held.

There appeared to be no letup in the cold war between the doctors and the hospital administration, which is backed by the 16-member board which operates the hospital. The institution is technically a private one but does re-

Harris Doubts Payola Control Plan Adequate

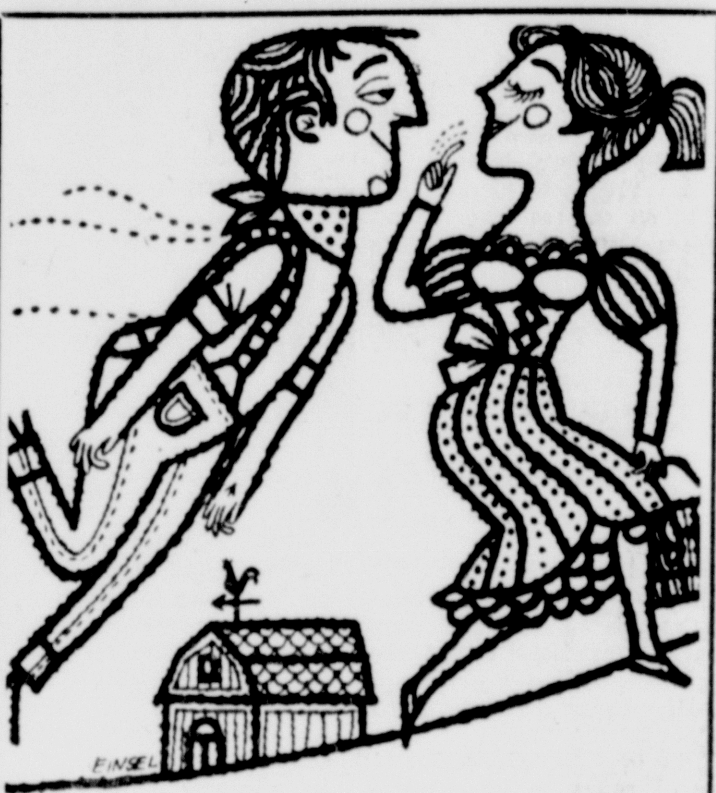

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) expressed doubt Tuesday that Justice Department proposals to cope with payola and fraudulent radio-TV programs are adequate "to really clean things up."

Harris, chairman of the House subcommittee which investigated quiz show scandals, indicated he thinks Congress will go considerably further in tightening regulations than was recommended by Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers.

Rogers, in a report to President Eisenhower, said federal regulatory agencies have failed to make full use of their authority to combat irregularities in the broadcasting authority.

He specifically recommended that Congress act to:

1. Make it a federal crime for a broadcast industry employee to be involved in payola—the practice of undercover payments to promote products or persons. This would be an extension of present law which makes it a crime for a station to broadcast sponsored material without so announcing it.
2. Give the Federal Communications Commission greater flexibility in penalty sanctions against offending broadcasters.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — American homemakers in the 19th Century claimed they cured earaches by wrapping the feet of the sufferer in roasted onion skin. The heart of the onion went into the victim's ear.

The technique was a popular food fad with a medical twist, according to the American Dietetic Association (ADA), which reports that food fads still are part of the American way of life.

Here are the facts about recent food fads to come to the attention of experts designated by the ADA to keep eyes peeled for such things:

Fad: meal-skipping is a fine way to lose weight.

Fad: It's a poor way. Skipping often leads to almost-starvation, corrected by eating much more—and often too much—at the next meal.

Fad: Canned vegetables are less nutritious than fresh ones.

Fad: You're all wrong. Nutritive value is more directly linked to the method by which vegetables are prepared.

Fad: Never mix milk and oysters, and fish, ice cream and oysters—even when the month has an "R."

Fad: These things do mix without sending the stomach into orbit.

Fad: Beer plus oysters is a poisonous two-some.

Fad: They are not.

Fad: Anemia and rheumatism are helped by blackstrap molasses.

Fad: The food mentioned is used the world over as food for livestock and is likely to remain in that category among informed persons. Said another way—there is NO justification for giving black-strap molasses recognition as a remedy for anemia and rheumatism.

Fad: Overweight is inherited.

Fad: Overeating causes most excess baggage on the body. That is, more calories are stored than are used. The excess is stored as fat.

Fad: If one vitamin pill a day is good, then two or three a day should be even better.

Fad: The doctor knows best about the quantity of vitamins to take. Excess amounts of certain vitamins may even be harmful—especially in childhood.

Fad: White eggs usually cost more than brown ones. Therefore, they are better.

Fad: The nutritive value of both rates the same. Shell color simply relates to the breed of the hen that produced the egg.

Fad: Craving certain foods is a sure sign your body needs them.

Fact: Cravings simply reflect the association you have built up for the certain foods. You like them—perhaps too much.

Negro Loses Housing Suit

BALTIMORE (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Roszel C. Thomsen ruled Tuesday use of government-supplied water did not change the private nature of a housing development and did not make it subject to the constitutional ban on racial discrimination by public agencies.

Judge Thomsen dismissed a suit brought by Dr. Brennie E. Hackley Jr., a civilian chemist employed at the Army's Chemical Center at Edgewood, Md.

Hackley contended that his application for a house at Edgewood Meadows, a 700-home development near the center, was rejected because of his race.

The suit was brought against Harford County officials, the developers, Art Builders Inc., and their agents, Ward and Bosley.

Judge Thomsen in his opinion indicated that he sympathized with the Negro chemist in his search for a home but could not find any legal basis for granting his request.

Part of the housing development will be supplied by "excess capacity" of the water and sewer plants in the Army post. Hackley contended this was sufficient governmental participation in the project to bring it within bounds of the constitution's provisions against discrimination.

Judge Thomsen noted in his opinion that the developers of the housing project are "private corporations, engaged in the business of selling real estate to private individuals."

"As such," he said, "they are legally entitled to deal with whom they please."

Nervi Gets Medal

LONDON (UPI) — Italian professor Pier Luigi Nervi Tuesday was awarded the Queen's Gold Medal for architecture. He is the third Italian to receive the award since Queen Victor instituted it in 1948. Nervi was one of the three architects who designed the U.N. Economic and Social Organization building in Paris.

SRC Crewmen Ready To Cope With Ice, Snow

BALTIMORE (AP) — Before mild weather rolls around again, State Roads Commission crews can expect to shovel more than 52,000 tons of rock, salt, calcium chloride, cinders and sand on the highways in an effort to keep them clear of snow and ice.

The commission made the estimate Tuesday in a report on how it hopes it can cope with storms affecting the 4,706 mile state road system.

The commission has erected 294 miles of snow fencing to cope with drifts.

It also has mapped out a plan in cooperation with State Police and the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. to reduce the danger to motorists when bad conditions develop swiftly.

G. Bates Chaires, director of maintenance and repair for the SRC, said the new plan will implement the two-way radio system by which key snow removal vehicles can be contacted immediately.

The commission owns 497 snow removal units and rents 81 vehicles on which plows can be affixed.

Materials on hand include 11,408 tons of melting agents—rock, salt and calcium chloride which will be spread on the road surfaces. The commission also has 38,000 tons of cinders and sands, which were placed last fall in convenient locations along the highways for reloading and spreading.

The snow removal job in the past two years has cost the SRC about $1,300,000 annually.

About 300 "icy road" signs have been installed throughout the state for uncovering by State Police to warn drivers when adverse conditions develop. Some have amber blinker lights.

The telephone company has placed in many roadside telephone booths a card giving the location of the booth, plus the telephone number of the nearest State Police barracks to contact in case of a snow or ice emergency. This information will be passed on to the nearest SRC field headquarters by radio.

Salesmen Rap License Plan

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP)—More than 100 door-to-door sales persons Tuesday night voiced their opposition to a proposed Montgomery County ordinance that would require them to be licensed and fingerprinted.

The gist of the arguments was that such an ordinance would be insulting to reputable sales persons and would discourage many persons from accepting part-time employment.

The regulation is backed by State's Atty. Leonard T. Kardy. He said it would help control what he described as objectionable magazine salesmen.

"These people," he said, "swarm over the county like a plague of locusts each spring and fall, bringing with them a crime wave and literally hundreds of complaints."

"We have no law on the books to control them, although they are a serious menace to housewives."

Statistics say that the milkman can use the bottle he leaves at a customer's door about 34 times before it's unuseable.

Pa. Democratic Official Heads Woman's Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, a Democratic national committeewoman from Pennsylvania, was elected national chairman of the Woman's Party Tuesday to lead its long-time battle for an equal rights amendment.

Mrs. Miller, of Slippery Rock, Pa., was not present at the convention session of some 20 members of the party where she and other new officers were elected unanimously.

She has been visiting in Canada for the holidays but is expected during the first 11 months of 1959 to come to Washington shortly to reach 17,650,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday of the organization formed in the day.

Population Up

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada's population increased by 366,000 for the holidays but is expected during the first 11 months of 1959 to come to Washington shortly to reach 17,650,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday of the organization formed in the day.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The people next door have a 9-year-old who is a little mischief-maker. He's been changing our milk card for the past two weeks. This morning I was left five quarts of milk, three pounds of butter, four dozen eggs and two cartons of yogurt (which no one will touch).

He's a sweet little fellow but full of the dickens. We are certain he's the guilty one but don't want to accuse him without proof. My husband says we must catch him in the act or we can do nothing. What is your advice?—OVERSTOCKED

DEAR OVERSTOCKED: Until you seize the culprit red-handed, ask the milkman to ignore the card and work out with him a secret hiding place for the official order.

I don't want to go to work. They sit in the living room and "Nice things" aren't that important. And having my mother in to watch and then we get the fish eye because they think we are hanging around policing them. The boy burns cigarettes would be great. He's for the off me and to tell you the truth idea. What is your opinion? — I can't stand the kid. He quit D.T.M.

DEAR D.T.M.: If you want to stay home stay home. And let your mother stay home, too — in HERS, that is. Clearly, you two would not fare well under one roof.

Apparently you've managed on your husband's income up to now. There are worse things in life than not having luxuries. If you let Mom move in and take over your home you'll find out what some of them are.

Wet Year, Good Farming Is Forecast

Charles F. Heller, claiming a "complete victory" for his "Salt-Onion Manac" weather forecast of wet and dry months during 1959, said yesterday it will be a "wet 1960 and you may see snow in May this year."

Heller, maintenance superintendent of Municipal Airport and former city commissioner, says the "Manac" which employs a special type of onion salt treated, was started by his grandmother, Mrs. Katherine Heir, in 1842. Here is the way Heller sees the months ahead: January, wet; February, real wet; March, wet; April, wet; May, dry, June, dry; and July, August, September, October, November and December, wet.

Wettest month will be July, Heller said, followed by February, August, September, October and November.

Very little rain will fall in January, April and December, he adds.

Heller continued that 1960 should be a good year for the farmer and added "They should get more for what they raise. The man who sells it to the consumer should lower the prices within a reasonable profit for himself, thus helping to reduce the high cost of living."

Heller closes his forecast with some suggestions to hunters: He urged them to carry buckeyes to plant when in the woods so that some day the resulting tree will bear nuts "which deer love and will go miles to eat" and to follow his example of planting acorns about two inches in the ground so that they will become trees and bear food for squirrels. If a hunter eats an apple, plant the core and some day it will bear small fruit; if a hunter passes a wild grapevine, bend the low branches or vines and lay a stone on them so they will draw roots and in a few years bear grapes for the birds, Heller says.

Va. Demo Leader Says Nixon Could Carry His State As Of Now

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — G. Fred Switzer, Virginia's Democratic national committeeman, said Monday Vice President Richard M. Nixon could carry Virginia as of now against Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) for president. Switzer told the Richmond News-Leader: "The way people have been voting the past eight years, they side with the most conservative candidate and I believe, generally speaking, Nixon is more conservative than Kennedy."

Switzer said he favors Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex).

Democrats Seek Funds To Maintain State Office

The Maryland Democratic Party from $300 a year for Cecil County to $5,000 each for Montgomerie, Monday night set up the "dues" for each county and Baltimore city districts toward maintaining a year-around state headquarters.

Thomas B. Finan, this city's state Democratic chairman, who conducted the meeting held for all county and city party leaders in the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore, said chairmen of the local central committees will seek approval of the assessments.

Allegany County's assessment has been set at $900; Garrett County, $200; Washington County, $1,000; and Frederick County, $900.

Other amounts to finance the year-around headquarters ranged from $300 a year for Cecil County to $5,000 each for Montgomerie, Monday night set up the "dues" for each county and Baltimore city districts toward maintaining a year-around state headquarters.

Doctor's Combination of Ingredients Stops Stomach Gas Before It Starts

Buffalo, N.Y. (Special)—Thousands of people who suffered from years of gassy stomach, heartburn, belching after meals and other symptoms of acid indigestion now report wonderful relief, thanks to a remarkable formula developed by a prominent doctor and known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Containing not just one or two, but a special combination of 7 ingredients, this famous medicine is designed to stop stomach gas before it even starts.

Instead of upsetting the delicate acid-balance of the stomach, as too frequent use of soda and alkalis often does, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery actually promotes more normal stomach activity.

Taken regularly, it tones up your digestive system and helps you avoid gas pains, heartburn and sour stomach. Once your stomach is working properly, you can eat what you like without fear of distress.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped so many people that over 38 million bottles have been sold. Get it at your druggist's today in liquid or tablet form. Your money back if not entirely satisfied.

Rowan Not Planning To Run Again

"I'm not talking for votes, because I'm not going to run again."

That was the statement made yesterday by John J. Rowan, County Board of Commissioners, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners. His comment came after a committee of Roads Department workers appeared before the board to request that wages and several other matters be considered by the commissioners.

The committee, Gerald Broderick, Paul Paugh and Chester Smith said the wage rates for workers on the county roads is too low and they wanted the board to give some thought to including a raise in the next budget. They also inquired about procedures on compensation, sick leave and classifications of workers.

Commissioner Rowan stated: "I feel that the Roads Department workers are the poorest paid county employees considering the hard work and type of weather they have to endure."

When the next budget is up for discussion the entire wage structure of the Roads Department should be gone over, Rowan added.

Commissioner William A. Wilson, who has jurisdiction over the three county institutions, Sylvan Retreat, County Home and County Infirmary, said he has the same feeling in regard to the wages paid employees at the institutions.

Wilson said there are three employees who make only $1,600 annually and quite a few others who get only $1,900 a year. There is a need for reclassification of these workers to a higher wage rate, he said.

Finally, Commissioner John T. Mason said there is a great need for a survey of the entire county Civil Service classification system. He suggested the county commissioners inquire of management consulting firms to ascertain the cost of a survey and then a decision could be made on having this work done.

The motion of Mason was unanimously passed.

West Side firemen responded shortly before noon when a West Side woman locked herself out of her home. The firemen assisted with a ladder.

Club Warned By County Liquor Board

The licensees for the Military Order of the Purple Heart, Mountain Chapter, were reprimanded yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverage License Commissioners for not having the premises cleared by midnight on Saturday.

An inspector for the board found a number of persons still in the establishment several weeks ago shortly after midnight Saturday.

The board warned the licensees that if there was a recurrence of the incident the permit to sell liquor would be revoked or suspended.

The board also approved the transfer of the package goods liquor license from Potomac Fruit Market Inc., to Paisley Court, Inc., which has Benjamin Hughes Jr., Mary Ellen Jenkins and Rebecca B. Hughes as incorporators.

The package liquor goods store is located in LaVale on U. S. Route 40 and was moved to that site from the corner of North Centre and Frederick streets last year.

Excess Weight On Bridge Cited

The problem created by a lumber operator using a bridge across Wills Creek at Ellerslie without regard to the four-ton weight limit was brought to the attention of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday.

James Alfred Avirett, attorney for the C&A Gas Company, appeared before the board to outline the situation. He said the bridge, which is owned in part by the gas firm, was repaired in 1956 with the company providing the timber decking and the Roads Department doing the work.

The State Roads Commission provided a survey listing the bridge as being suitable for weights up to four tons, Avirett said. He pointed out the bridge is used daily by 20 gas company employees who work at a pumping station, there are five families residing in the area and an additional 10 families in nearby Pennsylvania who also use the structure.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said he will inspect the bridge

Avirett said the gas company does not want to deny anyone the use of the bridge if they observe the weight limits but the structure could possibly collapse if the lumber trucks hauling eight to 10 tons continue to use it going to and from a sawmill operation.

Avirett said the gas firm wanted the support of the commissioners in having the bridge weights observed by the lumber operator and in the meantime will notify the man that if the weight limit is not observed the bridge will be blocked by a chain.

Our Place In The Space Race

The House Science and Astronautics Committee isn't going to waste any time about investigating the state of the nation's space program. The committee, headed by Rep. Overton Brooks (D-La.), plans to begin extensive hearings today, the very day Congress convenes.

Democrats have given top priority to probes of the "space lag" during the 1960 election year. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, chairman of the Senate Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee, is expected to announce his plans soon for a similar investigation on the other side of the Capitol.

Johnson's group was the last to put the Eisenhower Administration on the blastoff pad. A special subcommittee report last July 18 charged that U.S. space development efforts, both military and civilian, had been handicapped by Administration failure to develop a "comprehensive" long-range civilian-military space program.

New grounds for criticism likely will be found following Russian successes in hitting the moon with Lunik II, launched September 12, and in photographing the far side of the moon with Lunik III, launched October 4. U.S. moon-shot efforts, meanwhile, were largely disappointing.

A four stage Atlas-Able vehicle launched November 26 from Cape Canaveral, Fla., failed to make it to the moon when premature splitting off of a plastic nose sheathing caused disintegration of the upper stages. Inasmuch as no back-up vehicle for the complex Atlas-Able was available, the only way to attempt the feat again in the near future will be to divert an Atlas booster from some other civilian or some military project that already has been labeled essential.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

What Is A Celebrity?

It must have been a task to prepare the "International Celebrity Register" and the principal task must have been to define a celebrity. Cleveland Amory, the editor of this fat volume of personalities, says:

"... It (celebrity) does not mean, for example, accomplishment in the sense of true or lasting worth—rather it often means simply accomplishment in the sense of popular, or highly publicized, temporary success."

This makes a distinction between famous and celebrated, between distinguished and notorious. For instance, this book of celebrities is very different from "Who's Who" which is the American standard publication of persons of achievement. The person whose name appears in "Who's Who" fills in a questionnaire, which he is given an opportunity to correct from time to time. I am sure that if he were caught lying, his name would be thrown out. The "Celebrity Register" issued no questionnaire. Its own staff wrote the copy. "Who's Who" has no pictures.

The "Celebrity Register" is also different from the "Social Register" which is now a publication unrelated to reality. Society has disappeared in the United States. In its place is a hodge-podge of personalities thrown together for all sorts of reasons, few of them relating to heredity and class consciousness which are the earmarks of any Society. It used to be that no one was invited to dinner whose name did not appear in the "Social Register." These days, it is no longer a requirement.

I turn to a page of the "Celebrity Register" to see whether I am in it. On the two pages that face me are Carmel Snow who edits "Harper's Bazaar" and is one of the most charming of human beings. It says of her that she is "considered the last of the giants in fashion journalism." Following her is C. P. Snow who is a British scientist, author, government official and about everything else. Then comes my colleague, Louis Sobol, a thorough journalist who now writes about Broadway characters. Then comes Arkady A. Sobolev, the Soviet representative at the United Nations, a stern-looking fellow. His picture shows him to be a humorless man.

Then I went along and found an account of Princess Soraya, which was interesting because all I knew of the lady was that she did not bear the Shah a son. Maybe, it was the Shah's fault. But immediately under her story is a record of Pitirim Sorokin, the most brilliant sociologist of our day. He is so far ahead of his colleagues in this field that his writings are prophetic and many of his prophecies have already proved themselves.

And then I saw a sketch of Jacques Soustelle, a man who has long fascinated me. Soustelle is an anthropologist, but he is also a shrewd politician and he it was who worked up the situation that brought de Gaulle back into the political life of France. I first heard of this man from Vladimir Jabotinsky, the leader of the Revisionist Zionists who sparked many of the incidents in Palestine which made it possible for Israel to become a state.

This is interesting reading if you have the price for it. The charge is $26.

My only real criticism of the editors is that they made no provision for the authentic names of many celebrities. Then they might have become very rich, for there would be many who would pay fortunes to keep their authentic names out, lest they be discovered to be something different from what they pretend to be. In fact, it would be an editorial feat to publish a volume entitled, "What Was the Name?"

What sadistic pleasure one could get out of that! In the Big City where men and women appear and disappear and no one knows parents or grandparents or kith or kin, men and women come into one's life about whom one really knows nothing. Every friendship is bound to be experimental. One cannot ask, "Were you ever in jail?" One takes his friendships where he finds them.

This is particularly true in what is called Cafe Society where suddenly one is confronted by a Princess or a Countess or something. What a lovely time the ladies who like to gossip would have if there were a book to show the authentic names of current celebrities. I know I'm a mean old codger.

President Needs Experience In Federal Affairs

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—The office of President of the United States is perhaps more important today than it ever has been in the history of the country. Yet the process of selecting a new President is as inefficient as it has always been, and the American people by the present system could be confronted in some campaigns in the future, as in the past, with a choice between two mediocrities—men without any experience in federal government affairs at all.

This year is somewhat of an exception. At least five of the six able men being prominently mentioned for the Presidential nomination in both parties have been identified with the legislative operations of Congress. The Republicans have Vice President Nixon, who has served as a representative for two terms and as a Senator, while the Democrats have Senators Kennedy, Humphrey, Johnson and Symington. Only Adlai Stevenson, a former Governor of Illinois, has not served in Congress.

Dealing with Congress is the most important of the domestic responsibilities confronting a President, yet it is to be noted that in the last sixty years nobody has been nominated for the Presidency who was the leader of either party in the House or the Senate. This time Senator Lyndon Johnson, the Democratic leader in the Senate, is the only man being mentioned for the Presidential nomination on the Democratic side who has had leadership experience. Vice President Nixon has been acting on Capitol Hill virtually as leader of his party and liaison with the White House and, if elected, would benefit by his knowledge of the operations of Congress and of the policies of the executive branch gained as an unofficial member of the President's cabinet for eight years.

Somehow, in the past, preference has been given to Govern-mentors over members of Congress in choosing presidential nominees, and yet members of Congress, particularly those who have had leadership experience, know far more about the federal government than do the men who have served only in state or local offices.

The lack of federal experience is a handicap to any President-elect, no matter how able he is in other ways. The difficulty with Governors is that, if elected to the Presidency, they must spend the first two or three years learning the federal government's operations and especially how to deal with members of Congress.

Logically, as is the case in parliamentary government in Canada, Great Britain and other countries, the man who becomes the highest elected officer must already have won his spurs in the legislative branch.

What kind of man should be President of the United States, and what experience should he have had to qualify him for the highest office in the land?

Presumably he should be familiar with the operations of the federal government. While he may learn much from a state office, it is not the same as federal experience.

Presumably also a would-be candidate ought to know something about federal administra-

MORE PROBES—The upcoming session of Congress will be toward the 1960 Presidential and Congressional election campaigns.

Democrats, who control Congressional election campaigns. Democrats, who control Congressional investigating machinery, are determined to put Republicans on the spot. But the GOP minority doesn't appear to be much concerned.

Investigations already announced or in the planning stage embrace economic problems, welfare considerations, foreign aid, and "buy American" policy, budgetary and monetary methods, juvenile delinquency, self-policing proposals for the motion picture and publishing industries, and the high cost of living.

Two influential House investigating sub-committees are planning to take the Pentagon and several regulatory agencies over the hurdles. The House Armed Services group is drafting a sharp report on widespread industrial employment or entertainment of retired officers by companies holding huge contracts with the Defense Department.

The House Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight will soon issue a report on its inquiry into television quiz shows, and is readying a sensational new inquiry into "payola." There are strong indications that the Federal Communications Commission will be the target for special criticism.

Other inquiries will center around the federal farm program, revision of the tax laws, and the possibilities of strengthening the government's hand in settling such major disputes as the steel strike.

Moderation Helps Keep Blood Pressure Down

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Nowadays, competition is so keen it is difficult to make a living without subjecting yourself to the hustle and bustle of the times. Progress helps advance civilization, but raises Ned with a nervous system that is geared to primitive times. It cannot stand the strain of highly competitive work and herein lies one cause of hypertension, peptic ulcer, and heart attacks.

What should a person do if he develops high blood pressure? There are a dozen good modern drugs that lower tension but the more logical approach is to seek and eliminate the cause. This applies particularly to men and women who are overworked, overworried, and overweight.

It is true that in times of stress or excitement a rise in blood pressure is normal and desirable. This is nature's safety valve, which allows us to meet such demands without breaking down. On the other hand, if those who live under constant emotional tension will adopt a moderate way of life, the reading will be lowered.

All hypertensives need a 30-minute nap at noon or early evening to bring the pressure back to its base point. Others will be helped by shorter working hours.

A full eight hours of sleep at night will allow the individual to accomplish more and better work than before. An ordinary job creates stress when done by a tired man. If a reorganized life fails to do the trick, other treatments may be used. But try the simpler, sensible route first.

This may explain why everyone over 40 should have the blood pressure taken periodically. Those with borderline or high readings ought to take stock of their living and working habits to avoid a more serious elevation of pressure in the future. The earlier this is done the better, because the abnormality leads to serious consequences when sustained over a long period of time. With modern methods of treatment, the condition can be controlled before it affects the arteries of the heart, brain and kidneys.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send a leaflet on hypertension if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

TOMORROW: Sadness and depression.

ITCHING IN THE AGED

M. L. writes: I'm 86 years old, and have terrible itching all the time. Do you think I'm allergic to something?

Speaker Rayburn Faces Showdown With Liberal Democrats Of House

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Congressman Chet Holifield of Los Angeles is one of two haberdashers who have achieved fame in Washington. And while he has not achieved the fame of the man from Independence, the Congressman from Los Angeles, unlike Harry Truman, still works at the job. Just before Christmas, Holifield was in the back room of his men's clothing store making alterations on suits while Mrs. Holifield helped tend store out front.

Holifield has been tending store and making alterations for 17 years and is proud of his record. He can also be proud—though he doesn't boast about it—of his record in Congress. He has stimulated more thinking about the future of atomic energy than any other Congressman and had a lot to do with exposing the Dixon-Yates scandal.

Exactly one year ago Chet Holifield tackled another problem where he was not so successful. He went to see his old friend Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, potent czar of the House of Representatives both in name and in fact, to ask that he relax the veto power of the rules committee.

Holifield wanted the committee's power watered down to at least the point given it by the Republican Congress. He objected to the stranglehold right of Congressmen Howard Smith of Virginia and Bill Colmer of Mississippi to prevent legislation on housing, slum clearance, education, minimum wages, and other issues from coming to a vote.

Cows vs. Urban Development
Just a few months before, Congressman Smith had disappeared for five days to take care of his cows in Virginia while bills on sewage disposal, urban development, slum clearance, were slowly strangled in his rules committee. Holifield reminded Mr. Sam of this fact.

Mr. Sam didn't need to be reminded. He remembered the facts all too well and had been in it as sore as Holifield. But Mr. Sam, 78 years old today, has ruled the House longer than any man in history. His instincts are for his fellow men, his personal pride centers on himself.

Speaker Sam told Holifield that he personally would handle Congressman Smith. He gave his word that there would be no further bottling up in the rules committee. Holifield and the Western-Northern Democrats who were about to spearhead a revolt need have no worry about changing the rules, Sam said.

Holifield went back and reported this to the Western-Northern Democrats. They took Mr. Sam's word, dropped their move to liberalize the rules.

History Repeats

But last summer they found that Mr. Sam's word was not good. He tried. But the same thing happened all over again. Charlie Halleck and his Dixiecrat satellites outsmarted him. A whole series of important bills got blocked by the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition.

This year the rules can't be changed because it's the middle of Congress. But Holifield and Western-Northern Congressmen have not been idle. They have quietly organized a bloc of their own, have appointed a leader, their own whips, and are ready to block every piece of Southern legislation from cotton to peanuts to tobacco to the eradication of water hyacinths from southern rivers.

Their target is not Mr. Sam whom they love, but Dixiecrats who vote with the Republicans.

Temporary chairman of the group is Lee Metcalf of Montana; secretary is Frank Thompson of New Jersey; the whips include such tough, hard-hitting Congressmen as Udall of Arizona, Jimmy Roosevelt and Jack Shelley of California, Rhodes of Pennsylvania, Blatnik of Minnesota.

They have raised money to pay for a staff. They will be equipped to function much like the Republican National Committee which with mimeograph operators and research experts is far more efficient than the Democratic National Committee ever thought of being. And they have quietly signed up more than 100 Democrats from the North, Middle West, and Far West.

Revolt Spreads To Senate

This is enough votes to swing the balance of power. All last year, Southern Democrats had the balance of power and used it to line up with Republican Leader Charlie Halleck of Indiana on a long line of social and economic measures. Halleck in turn blocked civil rights, which both made the Negro the scapegoat and Negro legislation the costliest in the nation, because it blocked slum clearance, education and other economic measures.

This year, however, the 100 Democratic Congressmen now pledged to stick together can both upset Sam Rayburn's hold on Congress and spike the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition—if Southern Congressmen elected or the Democratic Ticket continue to vote Republican.

Note—The House revolt is spreading to the Senate. One of the men who helped his old House colleagues organize was Sen. Gene McCarthy of Minnesota. You will find more and more Northern and Western Senators lining up with McCarthy in a close-knit group for an independent course of action this Winter—regardless of Lyndon Johnson.

Capital Chaff

Assistant Secretary of Defense Murray Snyder recently asked Adm. Charles Kirkpatrick, the Navy's able information chief, to control the statements issued by outspoken Admiral Rickover. Kirkpatrick chuckled. "That," he told Snyder, "is a wonderful directive." . . . As a part of people-to-people friendship, Scranton High School is placing a trans-Pacific call today to a school in Japan. The school assemblies will be able to listen in on the good-will call on both sides of the ocean. Congratulations to the Rotary Club for helping to arrange this and picking up the tab. . . . The Inter-Governmental Committee for European Migration has made a spot check on refugees who have been admitted to this country since World War II. Most of those visited own their own homes, automobiles, and television sets, and are enthusiastic Americans.

The picture was old. The pages of the album were flipped until it came into view. Frank Broderick began to grin before he saw it. This was our graduation picture. It was made on June 20, when Frank and I graduated from St. Patrick's School in Jersey City, N. J. He remembered some of the kids. I remembered some. Many are forgotten.

There were three eighth grades in the school. Altogether, they totaled 105 students. They averaged 13 years of age and the photo, made on the steps of the school theatre, is 37 years old. Most of the little kids are 50 years of age.

Whatever they've done with their lives is irrevocably done. The Sisters of Charity gave us the best they had. None of the nuns are in the picture, but Sister Maria Alacque, Sister Helen Dolores, Sister Marie Agatha and Sister Marie Eustelle jammed the rights and wrongs into our little heads. We had no juvenile delinquents, because we were too terrified to do anything wrong.

Frank Broderick and his Beatrice came down to Sea Bright to renew old acquaintance. In the picture, he's a solid, good-looking kid. Today, he's a top-flight salesman for Easy Glitter Car Wax. He lives in Bayonne, has all his hair, talks baseball and football, knocks off a scotch now and then, and paints his own apartment. No children.

We studied the photo and realized that, immediately after graduation, the 105 students flared in many directions like sparks from a beach fire. We seldom saw each other after 1922. The first to die was Johnny Costello, a pale boy with a hunched back.

All had high hopes on that June day. All felt that life was a cinch. The skinny girl on the left of the first row was Catherine McGlone. She wasn't pretty, but she grew up to be beautiful. She had a voice, and she clawed her way up until she sang in Peter Van Steeden's band. One night the drummer drove her home. It was raining. He hit a coal truck. Catherine died instantly.

Two removed from her was a girl with thick wild hair. She was Mary Libonati. I think she's a schoolteacher. Frank Moran, always serious, is a police captain. Two boys standing next to each other, Joe Stockhammer and Vincent Kane, became priests. John Garrison works in a bank. Virginia Devine married Bill McCarron, a ball player.

The girl in the top row whose grin never died is Josephine Lucid. She has a family. So has Tom Kerrigan, Johnny Marron, one of the handsomest boys, works in a state job and supports his mother and father. Mickey Morley, jug-eared and tough ("I'll be waiting for you in the lots after school"), became a truckdriver. He passed away last year.

I was visiting a doctor in an asylum a few years ago and met one of the boys in the front row. He begged me to get him out. I spoke to the doctor. "Impossible," he said. "He has suicidal tendencies." Mary Danfels and Helen Alcott were the class Marilyn Monroes. Mary was one of the last to marry.

Muriel Dodd married a politician, Helen Scanlon, with the long straight hair, married Ray Thysen, an automobile dealer. There is one shy face in the second row. It belongs to Helen Walsh. She won all the gold medals for high marks. I don't know what became of her.

The Travers boy became a top-flight dentist. Robert O'Brien went in for politics. Johnny Allen, tall, easygoing, is gone. Robert Reilly is, I understand, with the F.B.I. Catherine Douglas, in middie blouse and black tie, was smart in every subject. One of the girls in the back row used to read a big geography. In it she had a Bertha M. Clay romantic novel. Sister Marie Eustelle caught her.

The worst crime I can remember occurred in the eighth grade. On Friday afternoons, Sister Marie Eustelle used to sell penny chocolates to help the missions. One afternoon after school, someone broke into the glass library at the rear of the room and stole the candy.

He was a pig, because, what he couldn't eat, he threw against the blackboard. On Monday morning, the ordinarily stern face of Sister was dark with fury. She told about the theft and asked if the student who had perpetrated the infamous deed would please be honorable enough to stand up.

He didn't. She asked the question three times. No one stood. "Then," she said, "the only thing I can do is to ask the rest of you to pay for the stolen candy. If each will contribute one cent, we will forget this shameful thing."

She passed up and down the aisles with a box. Everyone dropped a penny in it. When she got back, she smiled grimly. "I now know who did it," she said. Of course she did. I was the only one stupid enough to contribute a dime. . . .

Amen Resigns Grid Post At Wake Forest

Takes Job In Bank At Winston-Salem

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI)—Paul Amen, head football coach at Wake Forest College, resigned Tuesday to take a bank job.

Amen, who coached the Wake Forest Deacons for four seasons, announced at a 5 p.m. news conference that he was leaving the coaching profession to join the staff of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. here.

His announcement followed a meeting of the college athletic council which recommended that Bill Hildebrand, Amen's No. 1 coaching assistant, take over the head coaching post.

Amen, selected Atlantic Coast Conference coach of the year in 1956 and 1959, will work in the personnel department of the Wachovia, the largest branch bank in North Carolina. His salary was not revealed.

He had his best season at Wake Forest in 1959 when the Deacons won seven and lost three. A native of Lincoln, Neb., he was graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1938 when he played football, basketball and baseball.

He was a member of the U.S. Olympic baseball team in the 1936 games at Berlin while still an undergraduate at Nebraska. Amen took over as coach of the Wake Forest Deacons in February 1956 after 12 years of the coaching staff at the United States Military Academy where he served as head baseball coach, plebe football and assistant football coach at various times. Amen also served as an instructor in the West Point English department.

Carl Hubbard To Fight Redl

Chicago Is Scene Of Welter Scrap

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Stefan Redl and Carl Hubbard, young welterweights who have a combined knockout tally of 32, try to bomb each other to the Chicago Stadium canvas Wednesday night.

Redl, 26-year-old Hungarian refugee now of Passaic, N.J., is a replacement in the televised 10 rounder (ABC, 10 p.m. EST) for fourth ranked Rudell Stith of Louisville. Stith failed to pass a physical examination Monday because of a cataract.

Redl, who came to this country eight years ago, has been before TV fight cameras three times. He is a good left hooker and has scored 18 knockouts in 26 victories. He has one draw and has lost decisions to Gail Kerwin, Gil Turner, Vince Martinez and Eddie Jordan.

Redl has never been kayoed. Hubbard, 23, is an unbeaten slugger from Philadelphia who will be making his TV ring debut with 14 victories in 18 victories. He has fought two draws, both with Willie Grey in preliminaries.

The bout will be scored under the five point must system.

Piedmont Town Council Favors New Trial Fees

Spiker Named Police Officer

PIEDMONT—An ordinance increasing costs from $2.50 to $3.50 on fines of $5 or more for speeding was unanimously endorsed last night by Mayor Rodney Baker and Council.

The ordinance, if finally adopted, will cancel one recently proposed and favorably endorsed at its first reading.

Gene Keyes, a former chief of police, previously presented a 116-name petition protesting its passage. He also offered a letter from Thomas Appel, another former chief of police, who opposed the measure. The first proposed ordinance stated the arresting officers would receive $1 of all fines of $5 or more.

A second reading on the new ordinance will be held January 18. Before the revised ordinance was ready, Councilman Kingsley Skidmore said he received much criticism about the first proposed ordinance.

The Mayor and Council are anxious to increase the salaries of the Police Department but will not be able to do so until July 1 as it is not included in this year's budget. The state does not permit them to increase the pay of town officers because it is not in the budget set-up.

Edward E. Spiker was appointed an extra police officer. He will work one or two days a week and be paid $1.15 per hour.

Spiker, a brother of Police Chief Charles Spiker, was a member of the U. S. Marine Corps for six and a half years including 20 months service with the Military Police. He has completed a Marine Corps criminal investigation course, ICS business law, ICS business law and traffic management course and has completed one and a half years of a three-year course in law at LaSalle Extension University, Chicago.

Harry McCulloch Jr., local businessman, complained about trailer trucks damaging his curbing. Trucks have been running on the pavement in front of his store on Ashfield Street in order to turn down Kenny Street.

Council decided to prohibit trailer trucks from using Kenny Street. Signs will be posted. Drivers of trucks delivering merchandise to the Murphy Company will be instructed to back from Third Street, across Ashfield Street and through Kalbaugh's Alley to unload merchandise at the store.

Joseph Maybury, town clerk, reported that there is a balance of $2,285.66 in his general account. All December accounts were paid with the exception of the street lighting bill. There is $192.93 in the water account.

W.Va. Sales Tax Boost Considered

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—House Speaker Harry R. Pauley (D-McDowell) said Tuesday he "understood" Gov. Cecil H. Underwood was considering asking the Legislature to boost West Virginia's consumers sales tax to 3 per cent.

This would "take up the slack" if the legislators exempted food purchases from the present 2 per cent levy and provide a net gain of $1,200,000, Pauley said.

Similar moves have been made by Govs. Lindsey Almond of Virginia and Bert T. Combs of Kentucky.

Underwood included this proposal in his 26-item call last week for the 30-day budgetary session which meets Jan. 13.

Seven of the items are intended to deal with West Virginia's pressing economic problems, 10 provide for various technical changes in existing laws and the other nine are primarily of local interest.

Underwood said in a news conference that elimination of the sales tax on food items would reduce state revenues by about $9,000,000 annually.

He also called for repeal of the soft drink tax extension on home mixes. This would further reduce tax receipts by some $350,000 a year.

Pauley, who emphasized that he had not talked with the governor about such a proposal, said he would outline a plan of his own designed to alleviate West Virginia's economic ills. He said this would follow Underwood's "State of the State" message next Wednesday.

"I don't believe there is any possibility of finding any popular source to obtain new taxes," Pauley said in commenting on the governor's call last week.

"I am tired of increasing taxes and it's time for somebody to cut expenses and make any savings available for other emergency use."

Pauley indicated Tuesday that his plan for economic recovery would include expanded vocational training over the Mountain State and an enlarged job placement program.

Parole Officer Halts Tragedy

KINGWOOD, W. Va. (UPI)—Preston County probation and parole officer Gay W. Martin is credited with preventing a possible mass asphyxiation during a New Year's week end community dinner at rural Lenoxx, Preston County.

Some 150 persons were attending the dinner at the Lenoxx community center. As the dinner neared an end, a child and a woman collapsed and soon afterwards numerous others began drooping and becoming violently ill. It was estimated about 75 were affected to varying degrees.

It was first believed food poisoning was the cause.

However, Martin and a companion investigated and found that birds built nests in the flues of two gas furnaces used to heat the building. As a result, the fumes were forced into the dining area.

Martin promptly opened doors and windows to the building and gave emergency treatment from his automobile first aid kit to the stricken. Only two persons were later taken to a hospital here and they were not held overnight.

Changes Seen In Oil Industry

By DAVID DEITCH
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most oil men are convinced that the industry, for the next several years, will be quite a bit different from what it was in the first post-war decade.

The supply picture has changed to the extent where the industry will have to live with excess capacity pretty general around the world for the next several years, it is generally agreed.

In the refining end of the business, consuming nations have encouraged — even insisted upon — the construction of new refineries within their borders, partly for currency exchange reasons and partly out of consideration for national security and pride.

In addition, a raft of "new-comers" have taken concessions abroad during the last few years leading to some very tough competition for world markets.

Venezuela Ups Taxes

Another development has been the action taken by the Venezuelan government to raise its oil tax rates while some companies have made commitments for concession acreage on less favorable terms than the 50-50 basis which generally prevailed in the first post-war decade.

According to M. J. Rathbone, president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, additional factors have induced the slower growth rate that American oil firms presumably face — about 5 per cent in international consumption and 3 1/2 per cent in the United States for 1960.

They include more intense competition from other fuels, natural gas in particular; the recovery of war-devastated Europe; completion of domestic conversion from coal to oil in home heating and transportation; a slowdown in post-war ownership of automobiles and improved efficiency in oil use.

As far as earnings are concerned, the 42 largest companies reporting for the first nine months of 1959 showed an aggregate net income of $2,031,620,000, or 15.2 per cent over the $1,763,990,000 reported for the same period of 1958.

Increase In First Half

However, the entire increase shown was recorded in the first half over the same period last year, when the nation was still feeling the tail end of its business recession.

The failure of third-quarter earnings to show any increase reflected a comparison with the earnings recovery of late 1958. Nevertheless, statistical service opinions for year-end profits range from 5 to 8 per cent over 1958 with a somewhat lower figure predicted for 1960.

The oil companies are taking steps to solve their problems. Heavy investments in automation, smaller margins of reserve capacity to meet fluctuations, reduced capital spending (estimated at 1 per cent less in 1960), the development of new uses and the wider application of established uses for oil are all measures that can help improve the situation.

Correspondent Outlines Space Feats Of Russians

(Soviet scientific achievements have come as a shock to most in the Free World. How was it possible for a nation so long derided as technologically backward to beat the U.S. into the Space Age? In the following dispatch, a UPI Moscow correspondent answers that question as he surveys Russian space accomplishments during the past year.)

By ROBERT J. KORENGOL MOSCOW (UPI) —

The time was more than 25 years ago. The speaker was Joseph Stalin. "We are 50 to 100 years behind the advanced countries," said the man who was to rule the Soviet Union from shortly after the death of Lenin until his own death in 1953. "We must make good the distance. We must ourselves become experts. We must turn to science."

And turn to science the Soviets did, with results that have never been more apparent — and for the West more sobering — than in 1959.

Soviet scientists had their finest hours in 1959 since they astonished the world with the first Sputnik on Oct. 4, 1957, and followed that by quickly boosting "Laika," the first canine space traveler, into orbit in Sputnik II.

Russia's two successful moon shots — one a direct hit, the other a successful picture-taking expedition to the previously unseen back side of the moon — brought the USSR worldwide recognition as the pacemaker in the race to outer space.

Whether the Soviets can hold their lead is a matter to be determined in the years — perhaps the decades — to come. But there is no doubt that the successes of the USSR space program have wrought a profound change in the nation's entire scientific outlook.

Emphasis On Training

Largely responsible for this is the nation's emphasis on scientific training. In addition to the chance for rapid advancement, top pay and privileges, a scientific degree provides Soviet youth with somewhat the same social prominence enjoyed in the U.S. for instance, by distinguished doctors and lawyers.

Allowing for varying definitions of an "engineer," some 106,000 engineers were graduated in the USSR in 1959 and the nation plans to turn out 119,000 more in 1960. Kremlin leaders like to boast that this is more than three times the number of engineers graduated annually in the U.S.

In addition, there is a Soviet scientific establishment of mammoth proportions with more than 3,200 scientific institutes employing more than 300,000 scientific workers full-time.

Overseeing this vast complex is the august USSR Academy of Sciences headed by Alexander Nesmeyanov, a scientist who also knows how to keep his political skirts clean.

Outlines Scientists Role

Just after the first Sputnik was launched, Nesmeyanov outlined once again the scientist's role in the Soviet Union.

"Science must fulfill its sole task of making Soviet engineering, economy, industry, agriculture, public health and welfare in the USSR surpass the levels achieved in the most developed capitalist countries," he said.

This is the guiding rule at all levels.

To make their probing advances into such fields as space research, the Soviets have often left the main body of their scientific effort in the rear. Everything is devoted to what the Kremlin and the Academy consider important.

"I was impressed with their equipment. When they wanted to do something they had the finest available. But often it was housed in quarters that would seem makeshift and ill - tended by Western standards."

Thus did one highly qualified Western scientist sum up his impressions here after a comprehensive tour of Soviet scientific facilities recently.

Want Results

What the Soviet leaders want are results. Never mind the frills and hang the cost.

But when results aren't forthcoming, there can be trouble.

The official Communist Party newspaper Pravda scored the entire Soviet science program last March for lack of coordination, wasteful efforts by some scientists, delays and red tape that were hampering the speedy transformation of scientific discoveries into tangible results.

Magic Program Is Presented At Fort Hill

A program dedicated to saving the life of children through "safety magic" was presented by a Michigan police officer to the Fort Hill High School student body Monday, according to Victor D. Heisey, principal.

The performer was Sgt. Carl S. Pike of the Kent County (Mich.) Sheriff's Department, Grand Rapids.

Sponsored by the American Trucking Association and Maryland State Police, Sgt. Pike presented his safety magic by combining his ability as a clever magician, as a stage performer, and his experience as a police safety officer to show Fort Hill students the importance of the rules of safety and good judgment.

Sgt. Pike illustrated his programs of facts concerning good safety behavior by using feats of magic.

His work has carried him to 40 states and the District of Columbia. Commenting on the number of students he has addressed, he declared: "If in those 305 appearances, I helped to save the life of one child each time, that means I perhaps have helped save 305 children. That's enough to make me dedicate myself to this work."

Sgt. Pike appeared on the stage before entering police work. As safety officer of the Jackson, Mich., Police Department, he worked with school safety patrols and developed safety programs that aided in materially reducing the traffic accident rate.

Building Boost Seen During 1960

By ANTHONY R. SCALZA
NEW YORK (UPI) — The construction industry is slated to top its record 1959 volume of $54 billion by nearly 2 per cent in 1960, but the gain is expected to reflect higher prices rather than any actual boost in the amount of work.

Economists look for money restrictions, particularly in the mortgage field, to haunt the industry well into 1960.

However, the same factors which combined to push up interest rates and drain off investment funds during 1959 may be less in evidence in 1960.

At any rate, the money squeeze is expected to affect private mass housing more than any other segment of the construction industry.

Housing Push

Last year, the big upward push came from housing and industrial and commercial building. Housing starts ran at a rate close to 1,400,000 during the first half, but trailed off to around 1,325,000 as tight money pushed mortgage rates higher.

Construction specialists in the U. S. Department of Commerce figure housing starts will drop to an even lower rate in 1960, per cent to 1,200,000 units. But while home and highway building will be down, commercial and industrial projects should show increases.

Industry and government figures agree that total construction spending in 1960 will run in the area of $55,300,000,000, some 2 per cent over the 1959 peak, and substantially above the $49,109,000,000 recorded in 1958.

Despite the housing and highway building declines, spending on all private construction next year is expected to rise to $38,800,000,000 from an estimated $37,800,000,000 for 1959.

To Provide Muscle

The muscle for this boost in the private construction sector will come from non-residential building — industrial construction and commercial building, including offices, warehouses and stores, restaurants and garages.

While the building business enjoyed its best year in 1959, the experts feel it could have been better but for the effects of steel shortages and tight money.

Construction contracts hit a high point in April which led through the summer, but the steel strike began to have a depressing effect on contracts and jobs underway during August and September.

Late in 1959, builders from all parts of the country reported that wages, land and materials were costing more, and with tighter money in prospect many were turning to larger, higher-priced homes where demand continues strong as personal income rises.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market took flight on an early burst of buying Tuesday that carried the industrial stock average deep into new high territory. The rail average at the same time moved along at open throat.

Wall Street chartists, meanwhile, were focusing their attention on yet another new high—that of the 65 stocks in the Dow Jones stock averages. The group closed the day at 222.62, just 1.73 points shy of the all-time high touched on Aug. 3, 1959.

The market boiled under the impetus of good prospects for the economy and the lifting of any further steel strike threat later this month.

The industrial stock section advanced 6.41 points on the day to

Fretting Over A Wedding

You've just received your invitation to a winter wedding. You're delighted to accept . . . except for your worry about what you will wear. The bride's worry vanished weeks ago when she finally settled on faultless formality in peacock faille. The bride's mother, content on the "important" gown so essential to a hostess, chose slim lines in shining taffeta, with motifs repeating her daughter's luscious lace.

But you don't know all this. You only know you want to look festive, without looking so fussy. You'll be mistaken for a member of the wedding. And you know your present wardrobe is winter-ready . . . and you're not quite sure you should hustle into the hustle of spring.

Why not plan to sketch the best of both seasons into your fashion picture? Flower-decked hats are already in bloom, to make your dependable dressy suit or your wonderful winter silk blossom out—especially for daytime ceremonies and receptions.

You can hint at spring in the colors you choose, particularly in your accessories (and congratulate yourself on doing some early Easter shopping).

Thruway Ramp Right Of Way Being Cleared

SRC Gives Contract To Brotemarkle Firm

Work began here yesterday on the Northwest ramp of the Wil- lowbrook Road interchange of the Cumberland Thruway project.

Crews of the S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company moved into the area off Lindnerville yester- day and began clearing brush and trees from the right of way.

The contract was awarded to the local construction firm by the Maryland State Roads Com- mission on the basis of a low bid of $99,624.40.

It will include grading, draining and surfacing, with flexible pave- ment, of .141 miles of highway.

Is Second Contract

The contract is the second to be awarded by the SRC toward the multi-million dollar Thruway pro- gram.

The first contract was for the first phase of the Industrial High- way and will be completed late next spring. It carried the South- ern approach of the Thruway from near the Everts Creek Bridge to West Street here.

Remaining work includes should- ers, guard rails, seeding and sodding and clean up tasks.

The SRC has also awarded a Route 40 project in LaVale to the Brotemarkle firm.

This contract, for $128,370.75, includes draining, storm sewer installation and surfacing on the southerly side of Route 40 from Park Avenue to Long.

Begins In Spring

The construction project was awarded to Brotemarkle, which submitted the lowest of three bids, for $128,371.75.

George Geary, assistant Dis- trict 6 engineer, said work will begin after March 15.

The installation of a new sani- tary sewer from the LaVale Fire Hall to Park Street will be made by the LaVale Sanitary Commis- sion at the same time the high- way is widened.

The new line will replace an old sewer line used by residents of the Haystack Mountain side of the road in LaVale. The Hout Construction Company was the low bidder, at $42,584.40, when bids were opened by the LaVale commission late last month.

He said citizens should be sure trees are put out on the regular nights, as there will be only one collection.

George R. Hughes Jr., 863 Columbia Avenue, local attorney, has accepted appointment as gen- eral chairman of the 1960 Heart Fund campaign, according to James W. Bishop, president of the Allegany-Garrett Heart As- sociation.

This is the second consecutive year Mr. Hughes has accepted this responsibility, and he said last night that his experience last year will help round out the campaign this year.

Mr. Hughes, who served four years in the House of Delegates as a delegate from Allegany County, also served as minority floor leader in the House for three years. He practices law with his father, George R. Hughes Sr., and Charles Z. Hes- kett in the Clark-Keating Build- ing.

County chairmen, community chairmen, area captains, leaders and volunteers will be named this month, he said.

This year's campaign goal is $21,600, of which 40 per cent is contributed to the Maryland Heart Association and the Ameri- can Heart Association for re- search and education into the problem of heart disease. Area College Proposal To Be Studied

The educational facilities com- mittee of the Cumberland Cham- ber of Commerce will meet Mon- day, January 11, at 4 p.m. in the Chamber offices to set up its pro- gram.

The committee, headed by W. Earle Cobey, was appointed re- cently to explore and make recommendations on educational facilities.

Area civic and industrial lead- ers have for years backed propo- sals for the establishment, in the Cumberland area, of a four- year liberal arts college.

Some contend, the Chamber said, that the first step in such a program would be to establish a two-year college which would form the basis of a full-fledged college.

Others believe that Frostburg State Teachers College should be turned into a four-year liberal arts college.

A third proposal is that educa- tional facilities for Cumberland area youths could be met best through the establishment here of a branch of the University of Maryland.

Officials said the committee will begin its studies with no pre- conceived opinions and will make a recommendation only after a careful study.

City Desires Free Choice On Set Street Fees

Resolution Would Drop 'Must' Tag

A charter amendment resolu- tion designed to give the City of Cumberland the power, if it so desires, to set uniform fees for street construction and resurfac- ing was passed this week by the Mayor and Council.

The charter amendment resolu- tion, passed unanimously as No. 14 Monday and slated to become effective February 23 unless a referendum petition is filed, is sought in connection with plans for starting a long-range street construction and resurfacing pro- gram.

Sought under powers granted by constitutional home rule, the resolution would change Section 131 of the charter, as revised by Charter Amendment Resolution No. 9, to provide that the Mayor and Council shall "if it so de- sires" adopt a schedule for pav- ing, repaving, grading, regrad- ing, surfacing, resurfacing, gut- tering, reguttering, sewerage, re- sewerage and otherwise improv- ing and that such charges "shall be uniform throughout the City."

Charter Amendment No. 9 made it mandatory that a uni- form fee schedule be set up for street construction or improve- ments.

The new charter proposal also amends Section 132 of the char- ter, to correct an oversight, and provides that liens filed in con- nection with street construction or maintenance will be good for 12 years, instead of five.

City Hall staffers yesterday were busy on another phase of the resurfacing program slated to begin this spring.

Stencils were being cut for ordinances which must be passed in connection with the plan. The ordinance forms will be of a standard type, requiring only that the name of the street and the type of improvement be in- scribed.

Slightly over $100,000, including $36,400 earmarked in the current budget for the five-year street program, will be available to get the program on the road.

Current plans call for the cost of the street improvements to be shared equally by the city and abutting property owners.

The Ridgeley Volunteer Fire Company was called to 29 fires last year which resulted in a to- tal of $10,500 in damage, accord- ing to the annual report issued by Fire Chief Robert L. Zim- merman.

Mr. Zimmerman said 18 of the calls last year were in the town of Ridgeley, but none of these fires caused any appreciable damage.

The fire company was called on 11 times to assist other fire units with blazes outside the town limits. Chief Zimmerman said these fires caused $10,500 in dam- age, of which $5,500 was covered by insurance.

An average of nine men an- swered each alarm, and a total of 345 man hours were spent working at the fires.

Chief Zimmerman said the fire unit will begin its campaign Sat- urday to raise funds to purchase new equipment.

Members of the company will visit homes in Ridgeley Saturday and distribute coin cards. The chief said residents of the town are requested to fill the coin cards and they will be picked up at a later date by the firemen, or the cards may be returned to the fire hall.
